

CONCEPT: LIPIDS

- Glycerophospholipids are the major membrane lipids (mostly phosphatidylethanolamine and phosphatidylcholine)
 - Many prokaryotes can't synthesize phosphatidylcholine, and use a different lipid
- Sphingolipids include ceramides, sphingomyelin, and glycolipids
 - Ceramides with attached sugars make the various blood antigens

